ACTIONS

TO COMBAT CLIMATE CHANGE

INTRODUCTION

The average temperature on the planet is rising at an unusually fast pace and is threatening the balance of the world's natural ecosystems. The reason for extreme temperatures, floods, large scale fires and mass extinctions of species is mainly attributed to our unsustainable consumption behaviour, that can be noted since the beginning of industrialization. As a result, human lives are being increasingly endangered, as we rely on natural resources.

Instead of being discouraged, we want to take action in the fight against climate change and motivate you to join us as well. The goal is to keep the increase in global average temperature to below 2° C above pre-industrial levels. This mission is urgent for the survival of human lives, and this is why we all need to take part - everyone is called upon to contribute, as we all depend on our natural environment for sustenance. This booklet is part of the "170 Series" launched by the Perception Change Project of the UN. It gives you 10 suggestions for each of the 17 SDG goals about what you can do on a daily basis to protect the environment and help mitigate climate change effects.

BEFORE YOU START, KEEP IN MIND THAT...

- The human activity of production and consumption is extremely intertwined and has complex value chains - this is why we stress the word “sustainable” in the sense that the actions you take should possibly contribute to alleviate a problem at its roots and not just getting rid of “symptoms”.
- We all live in different surroundings, climates, social and economic spheres and landscapes, health conditions and carry different responsibilities. So not all ideas may be applicable to every single person.
- The ideas in this booklet are basic - adapt the ideas to your personal environment, such that they make sense being put into practice where you are.
- In general, it’s about aspiring the balance. It would be wrong to say that the whole world population must reduce its consumption, as a significant part of the world’s population has hardly any access to basic living requirements. Still, try to keep in mind that it is generally about asking yourself if you need something and if yes, how much you need it, or if there would be a more environmentally friendly alternative to it.
- While greatly inspired by the UN’s 17 Sustainable Development Goals, some of the ideas provided may seem to go beyond this scope. Sometimes, the ideas complement the SDGs well, and sometimes certain ideas align with more than one goal. This further portrays the intersectionality of climate change, and how there are endless opportunities to tackle it, if we all work together.

ABOUT THE SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

Our planet is a beautiful place. We can easily forget how much it has to offer because we are constantly being reminded of the challenges we face daily, from inequalities to poverty to climate change. If nothing changes to stop, prevent or reverse these challenges, it will only get worse. That is why the United Nations exists.

Everything we stand for is to create a brighter future for every individual, where everyone can thrive and reach their potential. We want to preserve the good that exists in people, places and the planet and put an end to issues that take hope away from us. That is why world leaders came together in 2015 and mobilised the 2030 Agenda: a set of 17 goals for sustainable development.

This matters to each of us, because we are all responsible for being a part of the change. Our actions today affect our children tomorrow. Everyone deserves a fair and equal chance in life. Through the goals, we can reach far and wide because the goals are universal, they leave no one behind. It's also important to understand that these goals are interconnected. We cannot separate poverty from hunger, or education from women's empowerment and so on. If we can grasp that, we are closer to understanding the needs that must be met, and in turn we are closer to achieving the 17 goals. It's time to give back to the planet what the planet has given to us
